Question Review

Using the 'GPS and traffic laws' metaphor provided in the text, which statement best describes the difference between morals and ethics?

Your answer: Morals represent personal principles and upbringing, while ethics are shared rules agreed upon by a professional community.

The text describes morals as a 'personal GPS' (individual beliefs) and ethics as 'shared rules of the road' (community standards).

How does the text distinguish the 'Law' from 'Ethics' regarding standards of behavior?

Your answer: The law establishes the minimum standard to avoid punishment, while ethics represents the highest expected standard.

The content states that law is a 'minimum standard' to ensure functioning and avoid penalty, while ethics represents the 'highest standard' of behavior expected.

A professional is analyzing whether a specific action follows the principle of Utilitarianism (the greatest good for the greatest number). Which branch of ethical study are they engaging in?

Your answer: Normative Ethics

Normative Ethics involves creating and justifying ethical standards and theories, such as Utilitarianism, Deontology, and Virtue Ethics.

According to the content, why does society grant professionals certain privileges like autonomy and public trust?

Your answer: To ensure that professionals can avoid costly litigation and scandals.

Correct answer: In exchange for their commitment to adhere to high ethical standards.

The text states that professionals are granted privileges and, in return, society expects them to adhere to high ethical standards.

If a business manager is trying to decide on a fair wage for employees by applying ethical theories to their specific corporate situation, they are practicing:

Your answer: Applied Ethics

Applied Ethics is the practical application of ethical theories to real-world situations and specific cases, such as business ethics and fair wages.
